'Unity of Views' Reached In Tirana Parley

BELGRADE (Reuter). — The Soviet Premier, Mr. Nikita Khrushchev, on the second day of his 3-day visit to Communist Albania, was sightseeing on Tuesday and was given a cordial welcome at Tchile, an industrial centre on the outskirts of Tirana.

He and General Hoxha, Albanian Party leader, both spoke at a workers' meeting at a textile combine. The plant was a Soviet gift to Albania and is named after Stalin.

Mr. Khrushchev, called for the hand, was from the Western Foreign Ministers apparently did not reach agreement at Geneva, but that Russia does.

Mr. Khrushchev and the Albanian leaders, General Hoxha and Mr. Mehmet Shehi, the Premier, reached "complete unity of views" on all questions discussed at their first meeting on Monday, the Albanian news agency, ATA, reported. The subjects discussed were not disclosed.

The two Defence Ministers, Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, of Russia, and General Begjim of Albania, were present at the meeting, along with the Albanian Ministers of Foreign Affairs, Agriculture, Industry and Mining, and Education and Culture, and the head of the Albanian Planning Commission.

Tokyo Venue of 1964 Olympic Games

MUNICH (Reuter). — The first Olympic Games to be held on Asian soil will be staged in Tokyo in 1964. The International Olympic Committee decided here on Tuesday night.

Innsbruck, Austria, was chosen as the venue for the 1964 Winter Olympics. Both cities received an absolute majority of votes on the first ballot.

The Committee declined to annul the results of votes polled for Tokyo.

Mr. C. Azuma, Governor of Tokyo and Japanese delegate to the I.O.C., said that Japan, where the cancelled 1940 Games were to have been held, had made tremendous efforts to be able to stage them in Tokyo in 1964.

Sharp Debate on Aliya Loan

Jerusalem Post Knesset Reporter

Mutual charges of demagoguery and of catering to the voters characterized the Knesset debate on the amendment to the Immigration Loan Law which was presented for its first reading by Minister of Finance Levi Eshkol.

Both Dr. Yohanan Bader (Herut) and Mr. Yosef Saphir (General Zionists) asked why it was that Mr. Eshkol, while apparently favouring the immediate collection of the loan, was proposing that the decision be passed on to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Bader decided when and for what amount the loan should be collected. The four Opposition motions, calling for deferment of collection until the renewal of mass immigration, will be heard only after the vote on the Government bill, which should either today or next Monday.

Presenting the bill yesterday, Mr. Eshkol said he hoped that he would persuade the Finance Committee that the Loan Law must be implemented.

Govt's Still Short

He said that even if no more than 40,000 immigrants should come this year, the Government was short some £10m. in its budget.

Of this sum, £2m. represented the deficit for housing for the increased immigration in 1958-59, and £2.23-23m. for 40,000 immigrants in 1959-60.

Mr. Eshkol noted that the figure, £2m., could no longer be used in connection with the Compensation Loan since two months had already been lost. Not more than £20m. could now be raised.

During the debate, speakers of Opposition parties and Mapam asked how it was possible that, in the course of a month and a half, the sum of £110m. included in the budget estimates for anticipated income had "disappeared."

Geneva Recess As Big 4 Fly to U.S.

GENEVA (Reuter). — The East-West Foreign Ministers' conference went into a two-day recess on Tuesday when the Big Four Foreign Ministers flew to Washington.

On their return on Friday they will go into restricted sessions thus offering hope that after more than two weeks of public speeches, much with no progress to show, they will get down to fruitful negotiations on the problems of Germany, Berlin and European security.

At the final sessions before leaving for Washington yesterday, the U.S. Secretary of State, Mr. Christian Herter, gave details of the Western proposals for reuniting Berlin.

He listed a seven-point plan providing for free secretaries and direct elections in Berlin to set up a national committee which would draft a constitution for greater Berlin and an electoral law. These would then be submitted for approval by plebiscite. The Four Powers would agree to free and unrestricted access to Berlin which would ultimately become the capital of a reunited Germany.

Firm on Berlin

Mr. Herter reaffirmed that the status quo in Berlin could not be altered without the consent of the four occupying powers.

He called for a Western committee to be set up in Berlin to train the Canadian armed forces.

Under the other agreements, atomic weapons, non-nuclear parts and special nuclear material will remain in U.S. custody.

Burmese Premier's Visit Confirmed

The Premier of Burma, Gen. Ne Win, is to visit Israel in the near future, the Foreign Minister said yesterday in Jerusalem. This confirms reports of the projected visit made last week when it was said the Burmese Premier might come here by the end of next week.

The communiqué said that the purpose of the visit was to meet old friends and to make the personal acquaintance of Israeli leaders he had not yet met, especially Prime Minister Ben-Gurion.

It was stressed that no general political discussions have been planned, and that only matters directly concerning Burmese-Israel relations will be discussed in private talks.

Faubus Rebuked In School Board Vote

LITTLE ROCK, Arkansas (Reuter). — Governor Orval Faubus suffered a rebuff on Tuesday with the defeat of three race segregationists in an election for the Little Rock School Board.

Mr. Faubus had involved his personal position in the election, making two last-minute appeals in support of the segregationists.

The election arose from the Board's recent dismissal of 44 teachers. No explanation of the dismissals was given at the time, but Mr. Ed Murrow, Board President, said they had sympathized with integration.

Both Dr. Yohanan Bader (Herut) and Mr. Yosef Saphir (General Zionists) asked why it was that Mr. Eshkol, while apparently favouring the immediate collection of the loan, was proposing that the decision be passed on to the Finance Committee.

P.M. to Brief Committee on Suez Situation

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion yesterday spoke from Jerusalem to former Burmese Prime Minister U Nu in Hong Kong, with Mr. Ed Murrow, the U.S. television producer, acting as moderator in New York, in one of the most expensive radio-phone hookups ever made.

Caravans were estimated at the three points to film the unusual two-and-a-half hour long conversation which will be heard and seen over Mr. Murrow's "Small World" C.B.S. programme.

The two statesmen touched on topics ranging from a comparison of Judaism and Buddhism to communal living, private and State enterprise and the idea of contemplation.

The only limitation placed on the conversation was that politics be kept out.

Goldmann Pleads Jewish Unity

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, President of the World Zionist Organization, was greeted with a standing ovation by the B'nai B'rith triennial convention which ended its second day's sessions at Binyanei Ha'oma in Jerusalem last night.

Speaking in a private capacity, Dr. Goldmann, formerly an active member of a Berlin lodge, took up the theme "Quest for Jewish Unity." He made three points:

1) Jewish organizations must co-operate in working for the survival of the nation, particularly the small, isolated communities outside America. He inveighed against duplication, and praised the efforts of two bodies which proved the value of cooperation.

Meir: Israel May Seize UAR Ships

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter). — Foreign Minister Golda Meir, now touring the Americas, told a press conference here on Tuesday that Israel might be compelled to seize Egyptian ships and cargoes in Israeli waters unless the U.A.R. stopped seizing Israeli ships and cargoes from the Suez Canal.

The decision was taken in a closed meeting of the Committee.

The vote, taken in a closed meeting of the Committee, was 10 in favour of Mr. Reid and four against.

Senator J. William Fulbright, the Democratic Chairman of the Committee, was among those who opposed Mr. Reid's nomination. He had questioned Mr. Reid closely at a long hearing a week ago and the Senator said he was against the appointment of "amateur diplomats."

Mr. Reid is a former President and Editor of "The New York Herald Tribune" and was a leading member of the outlawed Communist Party who were accused of "wrecking" the movement and peace of the country.

Eric Ahmed Magdouli, Interior Minister, said that those arrested included lawyers, doctors, journalists and professionals, politicians.

He told Argentine journalists that the U.N. had not yet been presented with the Suez Canal to the Suez Canal.

The other three Senators who voted against him were Senators Russell Long, of Louisiana, John Kennedy, of Massachusetts, and Theodore Green of Rhode Island — all Democrats.

New York's Top Teacher

The biggest job facing the U.S. educational system in the next 10 years is to provide higher education facilities for a much larger student body and at the same time to improve the curricula offered by the nation's colleges and universities. This task was foreshadowed by Dr. James E. Allen, New York State Commissioner of Education, who is here as guest of the Ministry of Education and Culture. Some 40 per cent of high school graduates in New York State now go on to college, he says, and before long this figure will reach 50 per cent.

Teaching by T.V. is making giant strides. Dr. Allen reports. The education of many subjects is far from that for many subjects television is just as good and sometimes better than the normal method. An outstanding teacher can be utilized for thousands of children. It is one way of solving the teacher shortage, he points out.

To illustrate: eight small upstate high schools who had only two physics teachers between them—one a local radio repair man, and the other an excellent teacher—now have a physics teacher and the good teacher now teaches physics to all eight schools simultaneously.

The closed circuit system provides each class with a permanent feedback box by which the teacher on the screen can be asked questions.

Plans Drawn Up For Argentine Investment

The Minister of Commerce and Industry, Mr. P. Sapir, on Monday met with Mr. Simon Mirelman of Buenos Aires for a discussion of plans for the construction of Argentine investments for Israel.

Commissioner Allen's full title includes that of President of the University of the State of New York, a concept which embraces the entire education system of the State, including 2,750,000 elementary and high school pupils, 5,000 public and 127 colleges, 400 private and parochial schools, 800 libraries and several museums. "Yes," he admitted apologetically, "it's a man-sized job."

The system is headed by a Board of Regents and Dr. Allen is its executive officer.

Tremendously impressed by what he has seen during the first part of his 10-day visit, Dr. Allen was especially taken with the beauty of the new Hebrew University campus which, he said, "is very pleasing and has character."

Loan Debate

Mapai in general for having "retreated" after two of the Coalition partners had changed their minds about the compulsory loan.

Nothing has changed since the Finance approved the Loan Law in early March, Mr. Ben-Aharon said, for mass immigration had ceased even before then. There had been no justification for the Treasury to put off the implementation of the law.

Mr. Mapai, (by M. Rubin) said that while he would not mention names "there were speeches and declarations which did not encourage the opening of the gates."

Moreover, the Government's explanatory remarks on the housing budget were dubious, Mr. Rubin charged. As to Mapai's position on the loan, IL20m. should be collected immediately and be used to liquidate the ma'abarot. Collection of the remaining IL20m. should depend on the extent of immigration.

Mapai Defends Bill

The two Mapai members who spoke yesterday — Mr. Akiva Govrin and Mr. Israel Avi — defended the bill and rebutted the speeches of Opposition and other Coalition speakers.

Mr. Govrin ridiculed Dr. Bader's pessimistic outlook, asking whether Dr. Bader was privy to the counsels of the Government with whom the deal had been reached. Mr. Govrin asked him if it could have been a "half-a-loan."

If the loan money was not forthcoming, housing would have to be financed by inflationary means, Mr. Gur warned.

It might really turn out that not even 40,000 immigrants would come this year, but in that case the Finance Committee could decide what to do. To Mr. Saphir, Mr. Gur said that the Finance Committee has always been given a detailed accounting of housing funds.

Rabbi Shlomo Lorinc (Agudat Yisrael) asserted that the entire question boiled down to: for what purpose was the loan designed.

The answer: for immigration over 60,000. If Mr. Eshkol had a budget, there all he had to do was to come to the Knesset and request a supplementary budget.

ISRAELIS COME TO CAPITAL TO MEET THEIR PRESIDENT

Power Shortage For Next Few Days

Jerusalem Post Reporter

In a pleasantly informal atmosphere, some 2,500 persons from all walks of Israel life, as well as guests from abroad, on Tuesday gathered on the wide lawns of Gan Hakirya in Jerusalem for the official Independence Day reception given by the President and Mrs. Ben-Zvi.

The reception is now to be held annually on Lag Ba-Omer.

Three orchestras provided music as colourful groups mingled on the grounds, including Bedouin tribal sheikhs, leaders of communities and uniformed officers of the Defence Forces.

President and the guests who had distinguished themselves in widely different fields during the year, among them radio amateurs who had helped rush urgently needed medicine abroad, an Air Force lieutenant who lost an arm when dismantling a grenade, outstanding police officers, prominent citizens who had assisted police, Ministry of Finance officials, prominent exporters and officials of Tazas, the Ministry of Defence and Bedek.

The President received gifts of ceramic pieces from Haifa Youth Fund and Kibbutz Ein Hashlosha while another kibbutz delegate presented the settlement's first melons of the year. A delegation of the Eshkol Pharmaceutical Association from Toronto presented the President a mortal and pestle, the pharmaceutical symbol.

The clicking of countless cameras accompanied Mrs. and Mrs. Ben-Zvi's tour among the B'nai Brith delegates recording the event on his own camera.

Earlier, the President received the Diplomatic Corps at the park's pavilion.

Among those present were the Kibbutz leaders, the Justices of the Peace, Staff of the Police Inspector-General, the U.N.T.S.O. Chief of Staff and Jewish Agency Executive Members.

Baroness Made Kibbutz Member

HAIFA — Baroness Edmond de Rothschild was on Tuesday accepted as a member of Kibbutz Ma'ayan Zvi, to which her husband was elected as a member last year.

The Baroness is here on a week's visit under the auspices of the Bond Drive and Wizo. She and her party, which includes Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Meyers, arrived on Tuesday morning.

A rally of 1,000 former Americans living on kibbutzim and moshavim will be held this weekend at Ein Hashofet, the Association President, Mr. Harald Wilkenfeld, told the press.

TEL AVIV — "A money day" will be held on Wednesday in an effort to explain the largest Jewish community in the world to the Jews of Israel and to intensify mutual relations," the Executive Director of the Israel office of the World Jewish Congress, Dr. L. Bernstein, told press conference here on Tuesday. This will be the first in a series of days devoted to the various Jewish communities.

The two principals, Mapai and the Progressive, held informal talks on Tuesday. It is believed that the Progressive will not leave the coalition, but have said that a committee of inquiry will be set up to investigate the causes of irregularities.

The Jerusalem branch of Adut Ha'avoda on Tuesday said that the decision to send representatives to the Histadrut meeting had been altered by the Party stand that an investigating commission be set up. It should be composed of Municipal Councilors, including the opposition (who are not members of the Histadrut).

Public meetings will be held in 16 centres throughout the country, in coordination with the Association of Americans and Canadians in Israel and the local authority concerned.

Rump Council In Dimona Nullified

Jerusalem Post Reporter

BEERSHEBA — District Commissioner Yitzhak Vardimon on Tuesday nullified the decision of the Dimona Local Council's "Rump" Council.

He found that the Council which had been formed by Dr. Marcel Mapa with Adut Ha'avoda in the coalition was illegal because it was convened without the knowledge of the Chairman.

Mr. Vardimon told the parties that they would be entitled to convene a special session of the Council and to set its agenda if Mr. Milrod did not convene a meeting within a fortnight.

The decision to enlarge the premises was taken at a meeting at the Touring Club following discussions between Mrs. Charles Solovitch, President of the B'nai Brith Women of America, Mrs. Ida Goldstein, chairman of the U.S. Board of the Home, and Mr. Shalom Doron, Chairman of the Israel Board. Mrs. Hy Kornblatt, past President, was present.

RAMLA — Damage estimated at IL20,000 was caused when a mental patient at Be'er Ya'akov hospital set fire to the clothes store room and the hospital office.

The patient has been hospitalized since he was admitted to the hospital office. The fire started in a drunken state. He went into the lavatory which adjoins the store room, and a few moments after he left the fire broke out.

At 2:45 in the morning fire again broke out this time in a hall which serves as the hospital office. Engines were sent to the scene. The fire was put out by the firemen, but despite the firemen's efforts, the hall was completely destroyed.

The hospital management believes that the same patient was responsible for both fires.

Power Shortage For Next Few Days

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV — For a few days, the country will return to the almost forgotten era of electricity shortage and interrupted supply. A 50,000 k.w. generator at the Reading Power Station broke down on Tuesday morning, and will be out of commission for several days.

Engineers and technicians are at work around the clock to repair the equipment and the electricity company has announced daytime power cuts of up to an hour and evening breaks of up to 15 minutes.

The failure occurred just when another unit of 56,000 kw. capacity was being overhauled, so that 100,000 kw. generating capacity out of the national total of 360,000 are out of service. On the other hand, the new 50,000 kw. unit at Sukreil will be gradually started up this week or early next week, and will take up part of the shortage.

The United Synagogue is the parent body of 700 Conservative synagogues, with a membership of 240,000 families. It is the largest of the three branches of American Judaism.

Rabbi Segal explained that he and other Conservative leaders had discussed with Dr. Nahum Goldmann the implementation of Rabbi Mordechai Kaplan's plan to transform the W.Z.O. into a world Jewish kibbutz. This would mean changing the by-laws and aims of the W.Z.O. Until this is done, the synagogue movement cannot affiliate with the W.Z.O.

The crisis began last week with Mr. A. Aron (Adut Ha'avoda) engaged in protest against alleged irregularities at the Histadrut police.

The two principals, Mapai and the Progressive, held informal talks on Tuesday. It is believed that the Progressive will not leave the coalition, but have said that a committee of inquiry will be set up to investigate the causes of irregularities.

ONE is bound to regret the fact that the Hague Court has come to the decision that it has no jurisdiction in the Hague against Bulgaria. The decision against Bulgaria for shooting down of an El Al airliner, with the loss of 58 lives in 1955.

The total claims for damages entered by Israel, Britain and the United States—the latter in respect of the lives and property of their nationals—amount to around three million dollars, and up to now all Bulgarian offers of compensation have been negligible. Further, Bulgaria declines to recognize the joint claims as such, and has offered only to make individual grants, at its own discretion, where families have lost their breadwinners. There is obviously every reason why a case of this kind should be brought before an international forum for decision; it is almost the only way in which it can be settled satisfactorily and without leaving behind it unsolved disagreements.

The face of it, there are technical grounds for the Hague ruling that Bulgaria's 1921 agreement for compulsory arbitration with the old League of Nations Hague Court had expired before 1955, and that Bulgaria was at that time not yet a member of the U.N. There is no reason, on the other hand, why Bulgaria should not have voluntarily agreed to accept a Hague ruling, because she is now, once again, a member of the U.N. The Bulgarian Government has never denied that orders were given to shoot down the plane which had violated Bulgarian air space, and there are good grounds for the assumption that the shooting took place in error. There can be no real reparation, where lives are so wantonly sacrificed, but a willingness to compensate the families of the survivors and the company for its aircraft would at least have indicated regret that this needless tragedy should have taken place.

Despite the high standing of the Court, a suspicion is bound to remain that at least some of its members were glad enough to be able to avoid the responsibility of having to hand down a ruling that might have been opposed by Bulgaria, by thus confining their deliberations to technicalities. Had there been any discussion of the case itself, even without formal validity, this would no doubt have assisted Israel in pressing its claim before any subsequent forum. No attempt was made by the Court to consider the merits of the case, and the discussions centred entirely on Bulgaria's counter-claims that the Court could not impose its views on Bulgaria.

Israel has no choice now except to return to direct negotiations with Bulgaria, although these have in the past proved drawn out and unsatisfactory. There may be some prospects of improvement if the case should be brought before a Bulgarian court, as has been suggested, for that country will have every reason to wish that its courts should gain recognition as fair and equitable. Despite the poor experience which Israel has had, for instance, with the Soviet tribunal that dealt with the cancellation of the Russian oil supply contract in 1956, there are perhaps still some prospects that a Bulgarian court may offer a degree of justice in this long-standing suit.

Shah, de Gaulle Discuss Mid-East

PARIS.—The Shah of Persia on Tuesday held a 30-minute conference with General de Gaulle as a prelude to a luncheon given by the latter in the monarch's honour. No communiqué was issued. In line with Gen. de Gaulle's policy to keep details of such meetings secret, it was understood the two discussed world affairs with emphasis on the Middle East.

Among those attending the luncheon were Premier Debré and the Chief of Staff, Gen. Paul. The Shah arrived in Paris after visiting London, Copenhagen and Amsterdam. (UPI, Reuter)

Bonn Probes Frontier Security

Guarantees for Czechoslovakia and Poland Studied

By SEBASTIAN RAFFNER

BERLIN (O.P.N.S.)—REPORTS from Geneva that West Germany was prepared to offer non-aggression pacts to Poland and Czechoslovakia (as well as to Hungary, Rumania and Bulgaria, if desired) have been denied, but the denial is not unqualified, and the reports have not been entirely without foundation; they might still come true in certain circumstances.

It is certain that the question of improving relations with Poland and Czechoslovakia, including the question of giving assurances to these countries over the frontier question, has been carefully re-examined in West Germany in recent months. It has also been the subject of Franco-German negotiations. The general principle and guiding rule of that policy can perhaps be seen in General de Gaulle's statement that it was "the natural destiny of Germany" to be reunified within the framework of the European Community. The Franco-German negotiations.

Nevertheless, a certain community of interests exists: the Poles and Czechs may at present be more difficult to reunify than the Germans and Russians.

Frontier recognition is in the main a Polish and Czech, rather than Russian, interest, and the Poles and Czechs could not offer German reunification in return for it, even if they wanted to. From the German point of view, frontier recognition is the one big possible concession and bargaining counter they have in hand; obviously they cannot throw it away for nothing.

Nevertheless, the question arises whether even in the present situation there is not an area of common interest between West Germany on the one hand and Poland and Czechoslovakia on the other. If the Germans cannot have possible and helpful. For another, there is a certain lack of facilities for negotiation. Things might be easier if and when the Poles and Czechs arrive in Geneva, too.

However, the mere fact that certain common interests between West Germany on the one hand and Poland and Czechoslovakia on the other, and the mere possibility that these common interests might at some stage bring about an agreement, including a non-aggression pact, influence the present diplomatic situation. They weaken the East German Communists in their drive for recognition and a possible separate peace treaty; they impose a certain need for care on Russia, who finds her team a little more difficult to work together than before; they provide added maneuvering space to Polish diplomacy (and, theoretically, to Czech diplomacy); but the Czechs may be less interested in making use of it; and they considerably enhance the position of France, who, as one of the Big Four, as a close partner and confidante of West Germany and still-trusted friend of Poland, holds in her hands all the threads of this delicate and potentially highly important business.

YESTERDAY'S PRESS COMMENT

Fate of Immigration Loan

THE question, writes David (Hastadut), is no longer whether the Immigration Loan should be collected or frozen but how the ILA deficit is to be covered. The Knesset Finance Committee will have to decide but regrets that it does not go far enough to meet the needs. The paper suggests that the Treasury review its decision. As to the increase in the travelling allowance from $100 to $150, the Government knows that this is not enough.

Haaretz (non-party) writes that Mr. Eban, who has acquitted himself admirably in the service of the State and people as Ambassador to Washington and Israeler to America, will be confronted on returning home and entering the local political arena, with an entirely different set of problems that will call for considerable re-thinking.

Laurel (Abud Ha'ad) writes that the Ingard was a test for the United Nations and its Secretary-General. We are not the custodians of U.N. authority and prestige, but we have to protect our rights when we are in the U.N.

The argument that publicizing the Toff's sailing as a test ship only forced Nasser to seize her to uphold his prestige cannot justify his flagrant act of piracy.

This illustrates one of the difficulties in re-creating a language. In 1890, the first Hebrew Language Council (Ha-Lamed) was formed by Eliezer Ben-Yehuda and Yellin, Hayim Hirschson and A.M. Lunz. It only lasted a month or so but was reorganized in 1903. Since then leading scholars and men of letters have met regularly in an attempt to cope with the problem of adapting the ancient Hebrew language for all modern exigencies.

Occasionally, the Academy has been embarrassed by "languageitis." It has happened in the past that members of committees have started to use suggested terms and pass them into everyday currency only to find the word changed in the third reading. For this reason, all lists are now stated temporarily and officially usage of the words is embargoed until the final seal of approval has been given. An instance is the word tsukil for "frustration" which passed from the committee to the public. The Academy is now finding it difficult to promote the word tsupuk which was their final decision.

Correcting Usage

It has been a difficult task not only to create new words but also to wage war on incorrect and ungrammatical forms, coined in the press and elsewhere, which have passed into popular usage. Currently, for instance, the fight is on again for the word meoravon used for "impressive." Years ago, when a tsukil equivalent for "impressive" was considered, no decision was reached but the consensus of opinion was to continue using the word "impressive." Now the bastard form meoravon has compounded as an abbreviation of meoravon omavon has become popular and kindled the wrath of the pundits.

Since 1954, the task of tsukil has been entrusted to the Academy of the Hebrew Language.

The tsukil is a beautiful structure on the University campus with 15 rooms, archives and assembly chamber, tastefully decorated in pastel colours. The view from the glass windows which constitute two walls of the Assembly Hall is breathtaking.

But the windows will be covered with curtains to enable the members concentrating on the tasks at hand.

The impetus for the new building came from a $70,000 donation from Mr. William Salzman, veteran Zionist, philosopher and Hebrew scholar from New York. Originally he was thought this would cover the entire cost, but in fact the building has cost $150,000. The Israel-America Culture Foundation has donated $15,000 and the Israel treasury IL20,000. There remains a IL150,000 deficit.

Academy officials are grateful to Rassco, the builders, for handing over the building despite the sum owed. They hope to add another IL100,000 to the Hebrew University's budget, which is being used to help in installing roads, sewage, electricity and other facilities is valued at IL50,000. Another important contribution was made by Mr. Irving Edelman of New York who gave $5,000 towards paying for the furnishings. The architects of the building are Cashtan and Attias.

The staff is busy installing itself and revelling in the luxury of their new surroundings. The President of the Academy, Professor N.H. Tur-Sinai, has his own room, as has the director, Mr. Eliezer Mano, who has been one of the prime figures in obtaining the new building. The Academy has a staff of six in Jerusalem (including scientific secretaries, Messrs. Meir Madan and Aharon Dotan), six in Tel Aviv (including another scientific secretary, Dr. Eli Eytan) and one in Haifa. It is intended to transfer most of the Tel Aviv staff to the new quarters, although liaison officials in Haifa and Tel Aviv are essential to work with committees in the towns (e.g. jointly with the Army in Tel Aviv and with the Technion in Haifa).

Crowded Conditions

In the past, the Academy has been working in impossible conditions — three crowded and cluttered rooms for its staff, files and library. Whenever there was a meeting, the director had to vacate his room. The building is on a raised site and the word tsukil was their final decision.

The tsukil is a beautiful structure on the University campus with 15 rooms, archives and assembly chamber, tastefully decorated in pastel colours. The view from the glass windows which constitute two walls of the Assembly Hall is breathtaking.

Originally he was thought this would cover the entire cost, but in fact the building has cost $150,000. A year from the sale of publications (examples: dictionary of atomic science terms; dictionary of telephone terminology; Hebrew pronunciation of the Yeminite community). The problem now is to find the extra IL24,000 a year plus the money owed for the building.

However, the Academy has now really turned the corner. Officially recognized and universally respected, it is entering a healthy home in which it will be able to expand its important work. Its vital contribution can be appreciated when we compare the simple and practical Hebrew tsukil with the groping of the Hasidic pioneers who had to refer to it as "a glass through which the mass of the wall looks like the cedars of Lebanon."

MUSICAL DIARY

Brisk Barber

"The Barber of Seville," a comic opera in two acts by Gioacchino Rossini, Libretto by C. Goldmark and G. M. Fredriksen. Produced by Edouard Philippe. Conductor: Franklin Chasset. Settings: Gertie Berger (Israel National Opera), May 21.

THIS Rossini masterpiece has served as our National Opera's eighth in the season, and it can quite safely be presumed that the production will enjoy a long run.

Right with the opening overture (of which the conductor gave a very personal interpretation) a brisk pace was set for the entire work, and throughout it Mr. Chasset ensured that everyone on stage and in the pit delivered the general score for its value.

As Rosina, sparkling Marjorie Tyler maintained the high standard of her former performances with our opera company. A real revelation was Mordechai Ben-Shachar as Figaro, both in his acting and singing. Emanuel Moncada (Count Almaviva) and Yvonne Pollak (Don Basilio) filled their roles with such gusto that one had to decide whether it was the singer or the actor in everyone of them who was of greater merit. Even the minor parts of Fiorillo (Zigmund Rosenthal), the Officer (Raphael Rosenblat) and especially Berta the maid (Rima Samsonov) were adequate in every respect.

The only darker spots in the production were the tenement scenes, which did not seem as yet quite digested, as for instance the opening scene of the first act, where the singers acted as if they were some kind of plotters rather than a group of hired musicians. We also failed to understand why the soldiers' plateau (in the second act) marched twice around the stage before their final contest.

This is the first time that Israel has been represented at these contests. The Jury includes Mme. Yvonne Astruc, Gioconda de Vito, David Oistrakh, Grumiaux, Philip Newman, Yehudi Menuhin and others.

The finalists are now being included in a musical chapel, in accordance with the usual practice. This is a beautiful mansion provided by the Queen. They now have to concentrate on a musical competition specially written for the occasion by Darius Milhaud, which each competitor will perform, in addition to other works, at the final contest.

It is the first time that Israel has been represented at these contests. The Jury includes Mme. Yvonne Astruc, Gioconda de Vito, David Oistrakh, Grumiaux, Philip Newman, Yehudi Menuhin and others.

A welcome complement to the classical and modern repertoire was the radiant charm of voice and appearance. Her sure musicality easily evades the complexity of the coloratura and she fitted into the team with discipline. G.W.B.
